Systematic pathotyping of Australian Marek's disease (MDV) isolates

Organisation: University of New England

Publication: 1 March 2005
Researchers: S. W. Walkden-Brown, G.A. Tannock, B.F. Cheetham, A.F.M. Fakhrul Islam and P.J. Groves
Categories: Biosecurity & Flock Health
Tags: virulence, isolate, cell structure, immunosuppression, kidney, Marek's disease virus, maternal antibody, pathotypes, propagation

Increasing the understanding of the evolution in virulence of Marek's Disease virus in Australia, and to providing up-to-date information to the industry was the objective of this study.

Increasing the understanding of the evolution in virulence of Marek's Disease virus in Australia, and to providing up-to-date information to the industry was the objective of this study.