

Diagnostic tools for differentiation of vvIBDV and characterisation of Australian strains

Organisation:

CSIRO Livestock Industries

Publication:

1 June 2003

Researchers:

J. Ignjatovic, S. Sapats and G. Gould

Categories:

Biosecurity & Flock Health

Tags:

strains, outbreak, detection, diagnosis, Enzyme-linked immunosorbent assay, exotic, reagents, very virulent infectious bursal disease virus, differentiation

This study aimed to develop a rapid detection tool for vvIBD strains, and to demonstrate that changes in these strains can be clearly differentiated from overseas strains.

This study aimed to develop a rapid detection tool for vvIBD strains, and to demonstrate that changes in these strains can be clearly differentiated from overseas strains.